Good Vibrations is a national charity that uses communal music-making to support people with complex needs to develop transferable life and work skills. We support groups to play the Gamelan - an Indonesian orchestra of drums, gongs and metallophones - from scratch. Participants make their own music, learn traditional pieces, put on a concert, make a CD and gain a qualification.

Independent evaluations have concluded that we help people to:

- ⇒ Think positively about their futures
- ⇒ Develop social skills crucial for life and work
- ⇒ Improve their well-being
- ⇒ Become more engaged in education and constructive activity
